

Some Publications Acknowledging the GIS Population Science and/or the Advanced Spatial Analysis Training Programs.

Stephen A. Matthews
October 2009

We are trying to maintain a listing of acknowledgements to the R25 training programs as well as compile a listing of publications by attendees using the methods introduced at the ASA workshops.

If you have acknowledged our workshops please do not hesitate to contact Stephen A. Matthews (PI) at matthews@pop.psu.edu

Articles

Jeremy Pias and James R. Elliot 2008. Place as Recovery Machines: Vulnerability and Neighborhood Change After Major Hurricanes. Social Forces 86 (4) 1415-1453.

Tse-Chuan Yang, Pei-Chih Wu, Yi-Ju Chen, and Huey-Jen Su. 2009. Cold Surge: A Sudden and Spatially Varying Threat to Health? Science of Total Environment 407(10): 3421-3424.

Corina Graif and Robert J. Sampson (2009) Spatial Heterogeneity in the Effects of Immigration and Diversity on Neighborhood Homicide Rates. Homicide Studies 13 (3), 242-260.

Books

Gary J. Gates and Jason Ost. 2004. The Gay and Lesbian Atlas. The Urban Institute: Washington, D.C.

Book Chapters

Donald G. Janelle and Michael F. Goodchild. 2009. Location across Disciplines: reflections on the CSISS Experience. Pp. 15-29 (Chapter 2) in H.J. Scholten et al (eds.) Geospatial Technology and the Role of Location in Science. Springer Netherlands.